Company sets aside $25,000 for state park trails

Associated Press - September 18, 2009 3:05 AM ET

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) - An online “Click to Give” project to support trails in New York state parks has been launched by a Minneapolis-based organic foods company.

Cascadian Farm has agreed to donate a dollar to New York State Parks for every supporter who visits <http://www.parkvisitor.com/cascadianfarm> and clicks to support trail preservation and promotion at New York State Parks.

Visitors also have to leave a comment about why they like New York State trails, including some of the most popular parks such as Letchworth, Green Lakes, Minnewaska, Wellesley Island, Allegany, and Thacher.

State Parks Commissioner Carol Ash says the agency appreciates the help from private partners in tough economic times.

Cascadian will donate up to $25,000, with a guaranteed minimum donation of $15,000.
